I lamented the fact that I had been to the Icon Lounge years ago, the timing was all wrong (think Starbucks), and there was no trolley dome. When I was a teenager it was a hip spot, that's for sure, but the vibe is long gone (or, perhaps, it never really had one in the first place?). The Icon Lounge is gone too. What remains of the building is the Broeg Boathouse. I've yet to try to visit and probably won't. But there are a few reasons that I haven't been to see the Broeg Boathouse yet. For one, it's largely hidden. It's tucked away down an alley off of Washington Avenue, right next to an abandoned auto body shop. To find it, you have to be looking for it. The second reason is that the sign out front is shady. It's not on the website, and the box in which it used to be displayed is gone. That being said, there seems to be no longer anything to hide. Tonight, the Broeg Boathouse had its grand opening. The building is huge. It's what they used to call a great big barn in olden days. Here's the view. The interior is also huge, but it's not what you'd expect. The entrance is small. There is a statue of a phoenix, which is something that will become important later on. Over the statue, there is a large arch that leads into the dimly lit interior. Other than the large arches, there isn't much going on inside. There are two rows of black leather booths, and there isn't much to see in them. The floor is concrete. There are flickering strings of Christmas

It's taking the right steps to ensure that this investigation is conducted with full independence and integrity. We don't know how long this investigation will take or what it will produce. But as this president has said, if the president of the United States is found to be involved in these kinds of actions, that's not acceptable. At the same time, I would remind you that before this investigation started, the president was not being investigated. He was being questioned by the Justice Department, under the authority of the Intelligence Committee, for his own activities. The obstruction issue was raised, and that investigation, which was begun before this current investigation, was closed. It's against the law for the Justice Department to go after the President's critics or the President's political opponents. The president is not above the law. And there is no doubt that the American people have a right to the facts and the truth when it comes to the attack on our country. And I'm determined that the truth will be the final word. My fellow Americans, I thank you for this opportunity to speak to you today. And the fact that you're here today tells me that you have a healthy skepticism about the media and about politics. It also tells me that you're tired of a political system that tells you one thing today and something else tomorrow. A new CNN poll shows that the president
