You might have asked your self this question many times, when somebody is supposed to be your friend but instead its the opposite and they seem to be avoiding you all the time, don't think thats just you, many of us have been in a similar situation. So in this post i will show you a few tips on how to bring back friendship to a lost friend and to make sure you dont end up in a similar situation next time. Note: Don't expect some miracles here, because this will not force your friend to be your friend but it will probably have some positive results in your friendship. 1. Make sure you know them well (or at least as well as you can) The thing is that in a distance friendship you may know them a bit better than others, but in close friendships, you should be able to know them completely, that is, you know their friends, their family, their job, their favorite books, movies and things like that. So you need to be sure that you know their personal matters as well, if not, then they might just have some problems with themselves that you wouldn't know about.

2. Be patient Of course you should also be patient in this situation. You shouldn't be treating them like they have forgotten you. It's better that you treat them as if you were still friends. Be nice to them, don't ignore them, talk to them and you will probably see the effects on your friendship

3. Make sure they know about you Again, you need to make sure that they know about you, so that they don't forget that they've already met you. You need to make sure that you mention your current situation when you meet them. Talk about it in a friendly manner, and make sure that they know that they haven't forgotten you

4. Make sure they have time for you Sometimes people just have a hectic schedule, that's why they might be a bit lazy to talk to you. Make sure that you find time to talk to them. If you do have a time schedule or you have any professional duties that you have to attend to, make sure to make time for them. 5. Give them attention This might be quite tricky sometimes, especially if you just met that person a couple of weeks ago. Sometimes people just forget that they've met you and don't give you any attention. That's why you need to make sure that you give them
